

6. FUTURE CITY PLAN HERITAGE LISTINGS

The Committee considered a report from Neil Carrie, Senior Planner Urban Design and Heritage and Amanda Ross, Assistant Heritage Planner on the process for researching, assessing and including new heritage items in the City Plan heritage listings. The report signalled that a combination of statutory restraints on changes to the City Plan as well as the time and resources required for research and assessment means that although the identification of further potential inclusions and the review of current listings is an ongoing process, changes to the City Plan heritage listings are subject to limitations in time, resources and statutory processes which will not always be able to meet immediate threats to non-listed heritage items.

The report was considered by the Arts, Culture and Heritage Committee at its meeting of 12 June 2003. The Committee recommended:

“That the Regulatory and Consents Committee be asked to expedite making the City Plan operative as soon as possible, so that the heritage listings plan change can be initiated without delay”.

The Committee decided to note the recommendation.
