New/expanded bus exchange. I urge the Council to defer and reconsider this work. Much smaller sums could be used on smaller shelters on major bus routes and elsewhere in the central city. These would serve and encourage more passengers and use constructed, bought, or leased properties.

Creating one large exchange will bolt down the bus services in their present pattern. Quite different services

2 may be needed within a few years.

Solidifying the present routing because of a huge capital commitment to the one bus exchange will forever foster traffic problems in the city's centre. These will cost still more to resolve.

I acknowledge that the exchange offers a good but incomplete service. Nevertheless, the vision for future bus services should allow for flexibility - one of the strong features of bus services through, into, and 3 around cities. In Christchurch, the hoped-for expansion of public transport by buses will compound the traffic problems they are meant to solve if the routing is commanded and fixed by a single bus exchange building.
